REELECTED TO serve the Poplar chamber of commerce for another year at a dinner meeting at Rosso's in Woodville Thursday evening were Walt Flagler, president, seated at left: Melba George, secretary-treasurer; and Foster Brinkley, vice president. In reporting on past year's activity, Flagler said that the chamber's community projects - a cotton picking bee, a barbecue, and a booth at the Porterville fair, netted $3,000 for Tule River Youth Center improvement. Cyrille Faure, president of the Porterville Veterans' Memorial District board, reported that money was being raised for a building at Poplar; Ted Cornell, president of the Porterville Junior College District board, spoke on the pending annexation election. The chamber endorsed the annexation of Porterville College to the Kern Joint Junior College district. (Farm Tribune photo)

WATER OVER the spillway at Success dam - a site that many persons thought would never be seen - is shown in the above series of photos, taken Wednesday afternoon, December 7, with approximately 7,600 second feet of Tule river water cutting a new canyon around the west side of the hill that anchors the west end of the dam, then roaring back into the Tule just above Bartlett park. From top, looking through the spillway at Lake Success, down a little at that time from its peak storage, during the December 4-5-6 flood, of 101,154 acre feet; water flowing through the spillway, then breaking down the canyon up which the access road to the west side of the lake had previously been located. The water broke over the spillway at 3:29 p.m. on Tuesday, December 6, and continued to flow until the following Saturday.

LET'S GO WITH OUR OWN PEOPLE

By Bill Rodgers

We suggest that you vote next Tuesday.

Before you vote we suggest that you consider these thoughts concerning proposed annexation of the Porterville Junior College district to the Kern Joint Junior College district:

1. The agreement between the Porterville district and the Kern district on which you will vote provides that in the event of a favorable annexation vote, Porterville college assets — about $2,000,000 worth, go to the expanded Kern district of which Porterville will be a part. In return, the Kern district agrees to accept the $2,000,000 worth of assets. That's the agreement. In spite of all the talking and writing about the wonderful things that annexation will bring to Porterville college, that's the agreement.

We refuse to accept the statement by Porterville board members that a stronger agreement could not be legally written because one board cannot bind a future board. We ran into this ourselves long ago as a holder of public office. And we also learned that a lot can be done. A statement of intent, a statement of policy could and should have been written into this annexation agreement.

Now it's true that if Porterville annexes, and some future Kern board wanted to change this intent or this policy, there would be no legal recourse for Porterville, but some future board, faced with a policy statement in a formal annexation agreement, would be less likely to change that policy than if confronted by only dimly remembered conversation.

But what about the resolution from the present Kern Board? (Printed on Page 1) This is excellent, It gives us a weak leg to stand on where before we had no leg at all. But read that resolution again. If it was animated, we would hear the wind whistling through the loopholes; And, remember, this resolution is not part of the formal annexation agreement on which we will vote Tuesday.

When all the sound and fury has died, and the ballots have been cast, a "yes" vote will mean that we the people of the present Porterville college district have turned over all our assets to a large district; we will get back what this large district chooses to give us; our voice in the decision will be small indeed.

A "no" vote means that after 39 years Porterville college would be legally able to operate on its own, not in connection with the high school. The college would be administered by a board elected from the Porterville college district. And if we all got as concerned about that election as we seem to be about this annexation business, we could put an aggressive, imaginative group into office then get on about the business of improving Porterville college — ourselves.

That's the route we'll personally take. To us in this case, our "no" vote is the positive approach.

OUR TOWN

By Ruth Loyd

Paula wrote a note. A love note. She told him she loved him. Loved him. Loved him! Whoever he was, he lost the note. Guess who found the note. Would you believe! Clyde Hammond. Paula, darling, if you are going to write a pash note to your little darling, for goodness sake don't lose it near the Hammond Studio. You don't know what Clyde's sense of humor did to your note. Going to the studio to just purchase a little ole flash bulb can run into a show by Heckle and Jeckle Hammond. Gosh, like father like son.

It has been raining a bit in OUR TOWN. The dam didn't break. Which was nice. Listening to some of the more wild radio stations, I wasn't too sure tho. Jane kept wanting to inflate the rubber raft. Just to be sure, Mac Williams, John Starks and Mayor Aub went up to the dam just to check on things. I was sure they would try to put their fingers in the dike and make like the little Dutch boy, but they didn't want to get their hands dirty. I was kind of proud of them tho. They looked so official, and important watching the water start to creep over the spillway.

Watching high school dismiss during the late rain was really wild. School out early and raining like mad. Little darlings in their big cars heading for

Trout Washed Into Lake Isabella

KERNVILLE– 'Tis an ill wind that blows no good, so they say, and the flooding Kern river that last week brought tremendous damage to Kernville, and also to the Kern River Fish hatchery, washed 500,000 Rainbow trout out of the hatchery into Lake Isabella - which should make for some extra good fishing in the future.

Picking of desert grapefruit will get underway soon.

We just found out why the Editor allows us to fill his paper with columns of words. It's because the readers give up and turn to the ads instead. Actually this follows a trend which finds us all enjoying the commercials more and the programs less. A few more years and they can print the news condensed like the weather report. Just a headline saying "good", "bad", or "fair"- whichever fits the days events. And a "Bah Humbug" to you Bill Rodgers.

If you're tired of hunting for a parking place at our otherwise modern Post Office we invite you down to number fifty five "E" Street. There are plenty of parking spaces here and you can walk to the Post Office in no time at all. We'll even loan you a garden cart to carry the packages. We further invite you to come in and browse around. Not that you really have time for such things but you might accidentally fall over an ideal gift for Aunt Matilda. Something like a poinsettia in bloom, some glad bulbs, a shovel, or whatever tickles your pocket book.

True to Christmas and merchandising tradition we gift wrap, deliver, give credit, sell gift certificates, welcome you to our door, and hope you have a pleasant holiday season. We also hope the other fifty one weeks aren't too bad either. We're on "E" Street just back of the new home of Honda.

YOUNG MAN'S LAMENT — RAIN RUINS HIS HOOKSHOT

It was rainin' an' all, an' I was tryin' to sharpen up my hookshot. I mean, a fella can't get anywhere without a good hookshot. I don't think I'll ever be as tall as Wilt Chamberlain, so I gotta be a shooter. Heck, I probably won't ever be more'an seven or eight feet tall, an' Chamberlain's gotta be at least ten feet high.

But, this rain can sure mess a guy up. I mean, I had this game goin', and first thing you know everyone took off just because of a little rain. Wasn't over ankle deep out there at the basketball court behind the garage. Freddie, he's five an' don't have much sense, was about knee deep an' kept throwin' the ball an' splashin' everyone until his mother came and hauled him off by his shirt collar. Nobody ever gets to have any fun.

My hookshot was just startin' to hit, an' we was only behind 85-26. But we had this rally goin' an' woulda caught them in a couple of more days if it hadn't of been for that rain. I wouldn't have been so far behind, but I had Mary and dumb Linda on my side, which is like havin' a couple of trained apes tryin' to play ball on the Ed Sullivan show. I mean, they think a basketball is cute. An' Freddie was on my team, too. He kept tryin' to float the ball in the puddles an' he wasn't a whole lot of help. He did get a rebound once when the ball came down an' hit him on the head. But it made him cry an' he wouldn't play 'til Mary kissed the bump. It was sickening. I mean, lettin' a girl kiss you. He didn't even run.

Bad Mulvaney is on the other side an' he liked to drowned me, splashin' water an' everything. I would have blasted him one in the nose, but I gotta take care of my hands. A fella can't shoot hookshots with his hand in a cast; besides, I don't want him to get mad at me. I gotta have someone to practice against besides Mary and dumb Linda. Mary 's all right, but Linda, she's something else. She irons her hair. And, boy, that's really dumb. Anybody who would iron their hair couldn't make a hookshot in a million years. She shoots the ball with both hands, brings it right up from her feet, granny-style. Nobody has shot like that since the middle ages. I bet they didn't shoot that way even in 1955, an', man, that was so long ago nobody can even remember it. I bet the hoop is rustin' out there in all that rain. It's just goin' to ruin my hookshot. It's gonna take me a week to get that game goin' again an' all the time my hookshot is jus' slippin' away. Only good thing is maybe they'll forget the score.

SHELTERED WORKSHOP

terville State Hospital Protestant chaplain; a vocal solo by Mrs. Allan Coates, and an address by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy.

Following the service, refreshments will be served by members of the Zonta Club of Porterville, with Mrs. Wesley Traeger, chairman, in charge.

After four years of organizing efforts by Mrs. Dean Hahn, the Porterville Sheltered Workshop opened its doors in September, 1957, in a temporary classroom building at the Olive Street School campus.

First salaried staff member was Mrs. John Traeger who instructed the first seven children enrolled in the workshop in the workshop in learning simple tasks and crafts.

First work contract was laundering towels each day for the Bartlett Junior High school cafeteria, a project still in operation.

Current contracts with Porterville firms include processing planter cans for Daybell and Ingoldby Nurseries; salvaging gas meters for Rockwell Manufacturing company; sterilizing jugs for re-use; and a contract, under negotiation, with Beckman and Company, Inc.

Children retain all of their earnings except for 10 per cent credited toward the Workshop's operating expenses.

A total of 13 fulltime and two part time enrollees benefit from the workshop today. The salaried staff members are Mrs. Marie Browning and Mrs. Zona Hilton.

The building program which was spearheaded by the Porterville Breakfast Lions club, got underway with proceeds from an exhibition baseball game in 1963 between the Los Angeles Angels and the Houston Colts.

A 25 year lease for the lot at 130 North E Street was obtained from the City of Porterville for $1.00 per year.

Workshop children contributed $1,626 toward the building fund thru special projects including making street Christmas decorations for the city in 1960, candy sales, and raffles of quilts, aprons and other items.

Ground breaking on August 16, 1965, kicked off a community-wide campaign by the Breakfast Lions with financial assistance from the Zonta club, Orange Belt Saddle club, Tulare Co.

"THE EMPEROR'S NEW CLOTHES" IS BEING CAST IN ADULT THEATER FOR JANUARY PRODUCTION AT COLLEGE

PORTERVILLE – Try-outs for the elaborate production of "The Emperor's New Clothes" to be presented at Porterville College in January will be held tonight, Thursday evening.

The play, to be produced by the new Adult theater at the college and sponsored by the Barn theater, is a new version incorporating music and dance into the old tale.

The try-outs will be held in the Communication Arts building at 7:30 p.m. and everyone interested in acting or dancing is urged to attend, said director John Lawson.

The production also calls for the extensive use of scenery and costumes, he said, and those interested in these phases are invited too.

"Since it is a play for children, the roles are small but demanding," Lawson said. "Acting, as well as scenery, lighting and costumes must be as close to perfect as we can get them, since children notice everything."

The play has parts for a stubborn old king, an understanding queen, a dashing prince, a lovely princess, a gossipy matron, two inept but well-meaning wizards and a number of townspeople.

Medical assistants, the 20-Ands, Quota club, Garden club, Petal Pushers, many business firms and individuals, plus contributions of materials, equipment, and labor from business firms, contractors and workmen.

Completed is a one-story cement block and stucco structure of 2200 square feet, with an estimated value of $20,000.

At the old location an annual operating budget of $6,000 was needed. The main source of income was from individual donations and the annual light bulb sale which produced an average net income of $1,300.

To date the workshop has never asked for nor received any funds from tax revenue from any governmental agency.

First successful test of cable cars in San Francisco was on Clay street in 1873.

The residents of the Milo district who were stranded when bridge was washed out, telephones out and no electricity, are grateful to Bill Kieffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kieffer who put a generator and motor on his jeep and went from house to house to keep the deep freezers from thawing out and ruining contents.

Also grateful to Bud Lyman for getting helicopter to deliver the mail, and to the Edison Company and telephone men and highway crew for working constantly to restore service, that was out for 4 or 5 days.

college will be administered by the Kern Joint Junior College board.

If a majority " no " vote is recorded, Porterville college, from a financial and administrative standpoint, will remain as it is - a separate college supported by the college district, and it will then become necessary to elect a Porterville college board.

At present the Porterville high school board is serving also as the college board, since the college was separated from the high school district only about a month ago.

The Porterville college district, in which registered voters are eligible to go to the polls Tuesday, has the same boundaries as the Porterville high school district.

MORE THAN 95 PERCENT OF STATE AND NATION'S FARMS FAMILY-OPERATED

SAN FRANCISCO – More than 95 per cent of California's farms are still family - operated, a ratio that has not changed appreciably in 15 years despite the fact that some 50,000 farmers have gone out of business in that period, says the Council of California Growers. Approximately 80,000 farmers remain.

"Even though farms are becoming larger, they are still owned and operated for the most part by families," declared Council Executive Vice President O.W. Fillerup.

He added that this is true throughout the U.S. Department of Agriculture report which showed that 96 per cent of the nation's farms are family-owned and that they account for 73 per cent of all marketings.

Fillerup issued the statement to dispel the sometimes voiced assumption that California agriculture is being taken over by industrial - type corporations.
